Ray was recently in a series of meetings where our Brit friend was also present. He too was angered about the duplicitous comments and policy recommendations that were being made. More reason to be careful of what we tell him. He is apparently considerably more hawkish than other diplomats from that country and apparently very malicious.

I have decided to ignore any future communications with this person, including on a social basis. We have much more reliable, honest and professional channels to deal with the Brits if needed.
